The proposed changes are focussed on providing the approval pathway to further subdivide our suburbs without implementing the basics of good planning. Smaller allotments with minimal setback, token garaging requirements which ultimately are suitable for storage only in narrow to average width streets peppered with driveway access points create parking and traffic problems, overheated suburbs and effectively concrete and brick canyons. The Government is effectively opening the “anything goes” with these amendments weakening any possibility of opposition by the surrounding neighbourhood who have invested in their lifestyle based on the existing ability to have some say on what occurs in their immediate environs. If you think that the new Planning code is superior to what is presently in existence via Local Councils then put it to the test and make it optional for each council to adopt and implement the new code or choose not to participate. Surely the Planners in the State Planning Commission do not think that they are somehow superior to their similarly trained hard working front line planners in the Councils!
